

Rod Stagg Bio

Starting out in the Plumbing and Gas Fitting Trades, Rod Stagg began his business and entrepreneurship journey in 1984. Around the same time Rod became involved with the Metis Nation of Alberta and the Canadian Federal Government, supporting the development of the Federal Governments procurement strategy for Indigenous business.

Throughout the years Rod has supported Indigenous youth by going to Indigenous communities to educate and encourage youth to work in the trades. Entering the Indigenous Incubator Inc in its early years, Rod developed Cougar Technical Services Ltd., which apprenticed dozens of journeymen and employed several staff over the years.

Present day, Rods company, Stagg Construction Services Ltd., is the first company from the Indigenous Incubator doing work for the Federal Governments procurement strategy for Indigenous business and BGIS. Since the Incubator in September 2022, Stagg Construction Services Ltd. has been featured on the RBC Discover and Learn website, as well as a front page feature on The Canadian Aboriginal Business Report, discussing Rods contribution to the Indigenous community in Calgary, which has been immense throughout the years.
